

LA FOLLIA NUOVA

International Chamber Music Competition

Regulations

The 4th International Chamber Music Competition organized by the musical association “La Follia Nuova” based in Trentino - South Tyrol (Italy) promotes artistic achievement of emerging talents as well as the cultural environment and landscape of the region where the competition is hosted.

The purpose of “La Follia Nuova” is to organize concerts over multiple seasons, inviting professional musicians and young talented artists from Italy and abroad to Trentino - South Tyrol. Therefore, the aim of the competition is to find a group that blends well with the spirit of the association. To make sure the audience feels a deeper connection with the performers, the association believes that it is essential to invigorate every concert by sharing relevant historical background, culturally embedded reflections and explain the music performed.

Elegibility

The competition is open to instrumental chamber music groups of any nationality, ranging from duo to quintet, with or without a piano (except two pianos and organ).

The Chamber Music Group should be a stable ensemble. The competition is opened to all musicians from 18 years old with a maximum average age of 35 years. First prize Winners from past editions can't participate.

Participation

In order to participate in the competition there are two steps that must be undertaken by an ensemble:

1. send one or more video links of a performance;
2. send a concert program proposal of approximately 55 minutes of music.
3. Perform live in the final round (if selected).

The evaluation by the semi-final jury is done through watching submitted videos and evaluating the concert proposal. The links submitted must therefore be correct and active on the platform at the time of the hearings (Youtube).

Videos

Videos not older than one year performed by the chamber music group enrolled are allowed. The video-recording must be made without the introduction of video effects and in particular audio reverbs that modify the sound. There must be only one fixed camera and the hands and faces of the performers must be clearly seen. Don't wear a facemask. Don't use titles.

Videos must be uploaded to Youtube. Make sure the videos are UNLISTED. The video must be named as follows:

1. Title: Name of the ensemble (e.g.: Duo Example)

2: Description: Names of the group members and all pieces performed in the video (e.g.: Name Surname, Brahms Violin Sonata Nr. 1 movement 1&2; Beethoven Violin Sonata Nr. 9 movement 1)

Please look for good recording quality, without altering the sound.

Material

Video

The program is free of choice, therefore, transcriptions or arrangements are allowed. We welcome transcriptions and arrangements done by the competitors.

The performance of the chamber group can be sent in one or more videos.

Video length

The total length of the video/s must be of at least 15 minutes and not exceed 20 minutes.

Concert Program

In addition to the video performance, a concert proposal designed by the chamber music group has to be sent. This proposal must contain an example of a program of approx. 55 minutes of music.

The aim of this proposal is to showcase the capability of the group to create a concert that:

1. works well in the setting of an average audience;
2. has a logical musical sense.

Pay attention to give as much additional information about your program showcase your ensembles ideas. It should be in form of a text explaining the logical and historical sense of the program.

Final round

The 5 best ranked groups from the semi final round will pass to the final round, which will be held live at the Residenz Maria Heim in Bolzano, Italy. The date for the final round is the 16th september 2023. Travel costs are borne by the competitors.

The groups selected for the final round will be announced online and contacted via e-mail. The ensemble must confirm the participation at the live performance in front of the final jury within one week from notification.

The performance of the final round can include the pieces submitted via video or can be completely different. The length of the performance must not exceed 30 minutes and be of at least 25 minutes.

The details about the rehearsal schedule and performance time will be notified via e-mail.

The groups winning a prize have to perform at the prize giving concert on the 16th september 2023 at Residenz Maria Heim (BZ).

Deadline

The registration deadline is set at the 01/06/2023.

The results of the semi-final round will be announced by the end of July 2023.

For organizational reasons, the Competition Management reserves the power to modify the dates; any changes will be communicated via E-mail.

Jury

The jury for the semi-final round consists of Cristian Battaglioli Fiocca and Marco Rinaudo (artistic directors of the Association La Follia Nuova).

The jury for the final round consists in Massimiliano Girardi (saxophonist), Luca Lavuri (pianist) and Saverio Gabrielli (violinist).

If the total length of the performances should exceed the required duration, the Jury Committee has the authority to dismiss the remaining part after 20min (first round) / 30min (final round).

The decision of the Jury Committee is final and definitive.

Evaluation

The evaluation takes place in two separate phases:

1. Semi-Final (La Follia Nuova video pre-selection)
2. Live Final (Final Jury)

The 5 best ranked groups out of the semi-final will pass to the final round, which will be held in front of the final jury on the 16th september 2023 at the Residenz Maria Heim in Bolzano, Italy. The votes for the video performance as well as for the final live performance are expressed in arithmetical score from 0 to 90 by each judge, as a result of the average of the marks given by individual Jury Member.

The points, from 0 to 90, are allocated by technical mastery, artistic expression and fellowship of the chamber group (Interplay).

The jury committee will judge the technical proficiency but also and above all the expressive skills of the performers, their ability to engage the listener, their communicative power, the ability to express their personality through the interpretation of the music.

The jury will also evaluate the quality of the chosen concert program in addition to the performance. The program will get a scoring from 0 to 10. These points will be added to the score of the performance.

Candidates can request the individual scoring of the jury members and a comment on the performance. In case of a tie result, the group with the younger average age will be considered winners.

Each member of the jury that has had personal or professional contact with the participant is required to abstain from voting.
